Chitosan Nanoparticles in Drug Delivery 2022

Message from the Guest Editor

Chitosan is a polysaccharide derived through the deacetylation of the naturally occurring polymer chitin, which occurs in crustacean shells. Chitosan is widely available commercially in various forms, and its chemistry lends itself to functionalization. Due to its excellent biocompatibility, biodegradability and versatility, chitosan has been applied to diverse drug delivery systems for nearly every route of administration. The close relationship between the physical properties of the specific chitosan polymer used and its performance in drug delivery systems requires that we gain a further understanding not only of advanced fabrication methodologies and key physical characterization parameters, but also of biological interactions with chitosan at the cellular and systems levels. This Special Issue of Pharmaceutics plans to provide readers an overview and considerable depth on the current state of chitosan nanoparticle technology, application and analysis.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Pharmaceutics (ISSN 1999-4923) is an online open access journal on the science and technology of pharmaceuticals and biopharmaceuticals. The scientific community, the wider community and the general public have unlimited and free access to the content as soon as a paper is published; this open access to your research ensures your findings are shared with the widest possible audience. Please consider publishing your impressive work in this high quality journal. We would be pleased to welcome you as one of our authors.

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, Embase, CAPIus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Pharmacology and Pharmacy) / CiteScore - Q1 (Pharmaceutical Science)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 15.7 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 3.5 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the second half of 2025).
