Hot-Melt Extrusion

Message from the Guest Editors

Hot-melt extrusion has evolved throughout the past 30 years from being a young, pioneering research area in pharmaceutical processing to a mature, broadly accepted, and commercially applied technology. This Special Issue will explore the different facets of how it started, how it evolved to reach today's state, and what the future might bring. The authors will cover all relevant sections from upstream processing, the extrusion process itself, the corresponding downstream options, as well as special aspects of analytics. All of this will be provided by an expert panel from both industry and academia with a primary emphasis on addressing the needs and interests of both academic and industrial readers.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Pharmaceutics (ISSN 1999-4923) is an online open access journal on the science and technology of pharmaceutics and biopharmaceutics. The scientific community, the wider community and the general public have unlimited and free access to the content as soon as a paper is published; this open access to your research ensures your findings are shared with the widest possible audience. Please consider publishing your impressive work in this high quality journal. We would be pleased to welcome you as one of our authors.
