Recent Technology of Transdermal and Topical Drug Delivery

Message from the Guest Editors

Transdermal and topical drug delivery offers many potential advantages over conventional delivery methods of drugs. Skin has been used as an application site for therapeutic drugs to avoid the hepatic first pass effect and side-effects in the GI tract. Thus, topical formulations are beneficial, especially for elderly patients and infants who sometimes have difficulty swallowing medicines. In recent years, novel alternative methods for animal experiments and potent analytical techniques have been developed in the percutaneous absorption and skin permeation studies. We would like to invite contributions from researchers in these fields, including pharmaceutical researchers/engineers and academicians as well.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Pharmaceutics (ISSN 1999-4923) is an online open access journal on the science and technology of pharmaceutics and biopharmaceutics. The scientific community, the wider community and the general public have unlimited and free access to the content as soon as a paper is published; this open access to your research ensures your findings are shared with the widest possible audience. Please consider publishing your impressive work in this high quality journal. We would be pleased to welcome you as one of our authors.

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Pharmacology and Pharmacy) / CiteScore - Q1 (Pharmaceutical Science)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 14.9 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 3.3 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2025).
