Women in Pharmaceutics

Message from the Collection Editors

To date countless women have made historical contributions to science. Many didn't have due scientific recognition but have spurred the birth of several generations of female scientists. Despite the struggles over time for gender discrimination, there are still too many problems facing women scientists as they advance their careers. Pharmaceutics wants to contribute to decreasing this gender discrimination launching a Special Issue titled "Women in Pharmaceutics". This Special Issue is intended to provide a forum for academic researchers and other professionals to share their recent works and contribution in the advancement of knowledge in several fields. Topics of interest for publication in this Special Issue include, but are not limited to, the following: innovative technologies and therapeutic strategies, nanomedicine, tissue engineering and regenerative medicine, selective targeting, drug release control, in vitro and in vivo evidences. The only requirement is that the corresponding author is a woman.
