

Special Issue

Collective Agency and Intentionality

Message from the Guest Editors

The aim of the Special Issue is to bring together recent philosophical and logical research on the various aspects of collective agency and collective intentionality. Collective intentionality and collective agency, as well as closely related topics such as common knowledge, public announcement, and other forms of group communication, are among the key issues that are currently being studied in a variety of frameworks. Interested authors are asked to submit a proposed title and an abstract of 200–500 words summarizing their intended contribution. Please send it to the (Email A) or to the Philosophies Editorial Office (philosophies@mdpi.com). Abstracts will be reviewed by the for the purpose of ensuring a proper fit within the scope of the Special Issue. Full manuscripts will undergo a double-blind peer-review.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Philosophies searches for the syntheses of philosophical and scientific inquiries. It promotes philosophical work that is derived from the experience of diverse scientific disciplines and cultures. Multiple philosophies already exist—those of logic, information, computation, natural and artificial life, natural or artificial intelligence, complexity, technology, etc. Our mission is not to abandon philosophical roots and traditions of inquiry, but to promote the development of philosophical foundations and effective methodologies derived from diverse scientific explorations, and intended to enhance these explorations as to generate deeper and more holistic knowledge. Innovation may also be achieved through the cultural dimension. Other cultures can offer from their heritage a diversity of resources for exploration; these resources can also contribute to the emergent synthesis of philosophical inquiry.
