

Special Issue

Moral Psychology of the Emotions

Message from the Guest Editors

We are pleased to invite you to submit a paper to a Special Issue on the Moral Psychology of Emotions. This Special Issue aims to nourish and further develop the contemporary debate on the significance of emotions in the moral life. It will include papers from different philosophical traditions of thought as well as other disciplines, such as psychology, psychotherapy, neuroscience, and literature. In this Special Issue, original research articles and reviews are welcome. The length of original papers is from 6000 to 12000 words, and 3000 for reviews. The papers will be published online, open access, and also in print format. We look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Philosophies searches for the syntheses of philosophical and scientific inquiries. It promotes philosophical work that is derived from the experience of diverse scientific disciplines and cultures. Multiple philosophies already exist— those of logic, information, computation, natural and artificial life, natural or artificial intelligence, complexity, technology, etc. Our mission is not to abandon philosophical roots and traditions of inquiry, but to promote the development of philosophical foundations and effective methodologies derived from diverse scientific explorations, and intended to enhance these explorations as to generate deeper and more holistic knowledge. Innovation may also be achieved through the cultural dimension. Other cultures can offer from their heritage a diversity of resources for exploration; these resources can also contribute to the emergent synthesis of philosophical inquiry.
