Selected Papers from MOMPS-X

Message from the Guest Editors

The 10th International Symposium “Molecular Order and Mobility in Polymer Systems”, MOMPS-X, will be held by the Institute of Macromolecular Compounds of Russian Academy of Sciences in St. Petersburg, Russia, 23–27 May, 2022. (<https://momps2020.macro.ru/>) The main aim of the Symposium is to bring together scientists and young researchers, as well as scholars, working in the field of polymer chemistry and physics to exchange and share their experience and research results. Special attention will be focused on the functional and “smart” polymer systems and their properties important for applications in the engineering, electronics and biomedicine. Traditionally for this symposium complex stimuli-responsive nanostructured and “soft”-ordered polymer systems preserving a pronounced molecular mobility will be considered. We are pleased to invite all of the participants to the MOMPS-X Symposium to submit a manuscript for this Special Issue. Papers from invited lectures, keynote lectures, oral communications, and posters are all welcome.
