

Special Issue

Polymer Composites for 3D Printing

Message from the Guest Editors

Additive manufacturing, commonly known as three-dimensional (3D) printing, is a manufacturing process that builds 3D objects by successively adding materials to the workpiece.

The scope of this Special Issue includes but is not limited to the development of polymer composite material systems for 3D printing, advances in 3D printing processes for polymer composites, and the characterization and application of 3D printed polymer composites. This Special Issue is intended to assemble a collection of recent research findings in this field and to inspire future research.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Since its foundation in 2009, Polymers has developed into an internationally renowned, extremely successful open access journal. The editorial team and the editorial board dedicatedly combine open-access publishing and high-quality rigorous peer reviewing. The performance of the journal has proven this strategy to be well-suited and highly successful. This is reflected in the increasing impact factor of Polymers, the most recent one being 4.9.

I would like to invite you to contribute to the success of the journal by sending us your high quality research papers. We would be pleased to welcome you as one of our authors.

Editor-in-Chief
