Carbon-Based Polymer Nanocomposites: Preparation, Characterization, and Applications, 2nd Edition

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue entitled “Carbon-Based Polymer Nanocomposites: Preparation, Characterization, and Applications, 2nd Edition”, aims to form a collection of high-quality original/review papers focusing on recent progress and new preparations in the application of carbon-based polymer nanocomposites, including (a) the synthesis and surface modification of carbon materials; (b) the tailored control of carbon materials’ size, concentration, and orientation in a polymer matrix; (c) interfacial property control between carbon materials and the polymer matrix; (d) the evaluation of carbon materials’ dispersion state in the polymer matrix; (e) and the development of new applications using carbon-based polymer nanocomposites and various nanocomposites.
