State-of-the-Art Polymer Science and Technology in Romania (2020,2021)

Message from the Guest Editors

Polymer science and technology is one of the most important and representative fields for the scientific community in Romania, including both current trends and fundamental studies of polymers. As a highly dynamic field, in a constantly changing and challenging field, Polymer Science and Technology focuses mainly on polymer innovations and research applications in science, technology, engineering and medicine. Romania has a long tradition in this field, with traditional teaching and research centers, located in major universities such as Bucharest, Iasi, Cluj Napoca, Timisoara. Apart from these, there are well-equipped research institutes belonging to the Romanian Academy, recognized in the world for the scientific value of published works and for highly qualified human resources. In this special issue, I am very pleased to include works of high scientific value made by the best specialists in Romania, from research centers representative of the field.
