

Special Issue

Advances in Fluorescent Polymers, Conjugated Polymers and Conducting Polymers

Message from the Guest Editor

It is my honor to invite your contributions to the Special Issue of the journal Polymers, entitled "Advances in Fluorescent Polymers, Conjugated Polymers, and Conducting Polymers". This Special Issue aims to contribute to advancing and sharing the science and technology of innovative polymer materials, ranging from basic sciences to engineering at a large scale. The issue welcomes your contributions in innovation including design, synthesis, fabrication, characterization, and application of advanced polymer materials: fluorescent polymers, conjugated polymers, and conducting polymers. You are specially encouraged to submit a manuscript if the specialty area is aligned with advancing energy, optoelectronics, biomedical, nanotechnology, military, and smart window/building technology of innovative polymer materials.
