

Topical Collection

Featured Mini Reviews in Polymer Science

Message from the Collection Editor

In the past, Polymers followed a strategy aiming at highlighting important topics of polymer science with dedicated special issues and reviews. As it turned out that many of these selected topics would fill more than just one special issue being state of the art and worthy of more than one review, we decided to set up a new series of Topical Collections to keep stimulating discussion of hot topics throughout the academic year. Within this new series, we will publish contributed and invited mini-reviews with a clear focus on a certain hot topic. We hope to provide our readers with new and stimulating insights relating to recent developments in the field and look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Since its foundation in 2009, Polymers has developed into an internationally renowned, extremely successful open access journal. The editorial team and the editorial board dedicatedly combine open-access publishing and high-quality rigorous peer reviewing. The performance of the journal has proven this strategy to be well-suited and highly successful. This is reflected in the increasing impact factor of Polymers, the most recent one being 4.9.

I would like to invite you to contribute to the success of the journal by sending us your high quality research papers. We would be pleased to welcome you as one of our authors.
