

Special Issue

Advances in New Methods of Wastewater Treatment and Management

Message from the Guest Editors

The wastewater treatment field requires to be optimized and sustainable technologies in terms of their performance, environmental footprint, and environmentally friendliness. Likewise, societal concerns should be considered in their management and operation. The prevention and remediation of water pollution requires many diverse tools applicable in different ecological and sustainable contexts. Greater knowledge on recent developments and innovations in wastewater treatment strategies and processes is needed. This Special Issue will cover the most recent sustainable treatment technologies developed for wastewater treatment and management. Contributions from both academia and industry as well as experiences from full-scale applications and case studies are welcome. Review papers summarizing the existing knowledge and technological status of different strategies and processes for wastewater treatment and management are also welcome.
