

Special Issue

Modelling and Simulation of Food Drying Processes—Emerging Trends and Sustainable Practices

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue aims to collect articles that focus on modelling and simulation which are critical in exploring and refining both thermal and non-thermal drying processes, ensuring they meet the modern demands for quality, efficiency, and sustainability in the food industry. In this Special Issue, original research articles and reviews are welcome. Research areas may include (but not limited to) the following: air drying, ohmic heating, high-pressure processing, pulsed electric fields, pulsing light, cold plasma, irradiation, microwave-assisted drying, vacuum drying, freeze drying etc. We look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

You are invited to contribute either a research article or a comprehensive review for consideration and publication in Processes (ISSN 2227-9717). Processes is published in open access format – research articles, reviews, and other content are released on the internet immediately after acceptance. The scientific community and the general public have unlimited, free access to the content. As an open access journal, Processes is supported by the authors and their institutes through the payment of article processing charges (APCs) for accepted papers. We would be pleased to welcome you as one of our authors.
