Advances in the Analysis of Emerging Organic Contaminants

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue on “Advances in the Analysis of Emerging Organic Contaminants” seeks high-quality papers focusing on the most recent advances in technologies for the removal or degradation of emerging organic compounds in aqueous media. Possible topics include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Treatment processes using alternative, efficient, and low-cost methods;
- Development of materials from industrial by-products;
- Adsorption process, industrial and environmental integration, and application and modeling;
- Nanoadsorbent and nanocatalytic materials (e.g., silica, chitosan, graphene);
- Bioaccumulation, mobilization, biodegradation, and detoxification processes in phytoextraction.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

You are invited to contribute either a research article or a comprehensive review for consideration and publication in Processes (ISSN 2227-9717). Processes is published in open access format – research articles, reviews, and other content are released on the internet immediately after acceptance. The scientific community and the general public have unlimited, free access to the content. As an open access journal, Processes is supported by the authors and their institutes through the payment of article processing charges (APCs) for accepted papers. We would be pleased to welcome you as one of our authors.

Editor-in-Chief
