New Approaches to Qur’anic Hermeneutics in the Muslim World

Guest Editors:

Prof. Dr. Ismail Albayrak
School of Theology, Australian Catholic University, Melbourne, VIC 3002, Australia
ismail.albayrak@acu.edu.au

Dr. Hakan Coruh
Centre for Islamic Studies and Civilisation, Charles Sturt University, Auburn, NSW 2144, Australia
hcoruh@csu.edu.au

Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue of the journal Religions (ISSN 2077-1444)—"New approaches to Qur’anic hermeneutics in the Muslim world"—will discuss the approaches that play defining roles in modern Qur’anic interpretation in the Islamic world. It will critically analyse the intellectual efforts to understand the Qur’an in modern times by contemporary Muslim thinkers from different linguistic and geographic backgrounds. This issue will handle the representation and classification questions in contemporary approaches to the Qur’an in a way that includes the general Muslim world from different linguistic and geographic backgrounds.

Deadline for manuscript submissions:
closed (31 July 2022)