Message from the Guest Editor

In this Special Issue, we will examine the religious dimension of populism and its relation to gender—especially women's rights. To do so, we will bring together scholars of religion, politics and gender studies. To that effect, we are inviting contributions from different disciplines, addressing specific case studies, as well as comparative analyses.

If you are interested in submitting a manuscript for consideration in this Special Issue, please email the guest editor by November 15, 2020 with a title and abstract (email: Laura.Cervi@uab.cat, subject: Religions abstract). Full papers are due by March 1, 2020.
