Exploring Interreligious Dialogue: Perspectives from Social Sciences

Message from the Guest Editors

We invite scholars specializing in interreligious dialogue to publish their research results and theoretical considerations on the subject in the context of social science. The literature on the subject reveals the terminological and scope proximity of interreligious dialogue to social dialogue, multicultural dialogue, religious tolerance, openness to religious diversity, xenosophy, religious prejudice, and attitudes towards religious diversity. There needs to be more research on interreligious dialogue and its determinants. Essential conditions for shaping an attitude of openness to interreligious dialogue may be socio-cultural and educational factors. We welcome articles on the definition, structure and functions, as well as social and psychosocial factors, in interreligious dialogue.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
