

Special Issue

Secularism in Social and Political Contexts: Contemporary Trends, Movements, and Ideas in the Middle East

Message from the Guest Editors

This special issue of Religions aims to revisit secularism and politics in the Middle East. In search of an interdisciplinary analysis of theory and practice, we aim to bring issues and approaches together to contribute to the study of secularism and politics in the region. In this trajectory, we are pleased to invite scholars, experts, and policy-makers to contribute to Religion's special issue on "Secularism in Social and Political Contexts: Contemporary Trends, Movements, and Ideas in the Middle East". This issue aims to publish (i) original research articles that dissect the complexities of contemporary major developments in this regard, and (ii) reviews that systematically study contemporary major theoretical and methodological contributions to the field.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
