

Special Issue

Homiletical Theory and Praxis

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue will explore a diverse array of topics in homiletical theory and praxis. Scholars are encouraged to submit proposals in the following areas: homiletical theory; Jewish or Christian homiletical practices from antiquity to modern times; christology, pneumatology, or another dimension of theology framed via preaching in a particular historical era; reception history of a biblical passage or figure analyzed through medieval, early modern, or contemporary sermon studies; or homiletics in light of aesthetics, performance studies, or trauma studies; feminist, postcolonial, or womanist homiletics; eco-preaching and the global climate crisis; and interdisciplinary studies positioned at the nexus of homiletics and cultural studies, social ethics, liturgics, or political theory.

Prior to submitting a manuscript, interested authors should submit a proposed title and an abstract of 200 words summarizing their intended contribution via email to the guest editor, (carolyn.sharp@yale.edu) by 15 April 2023.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
