

Special Issue

Integrating Christian Spirituality into Contemporary Therapy Practice

Message from the Guest Editors

We are seeking submissions of theoretical and/or research articles that integrate Christian spiritual practices into contemporary practices. This Special Issue aims to (1) add to the emerging literature on incorporating Christian Devotion Meditation and other Christian spiritual practices into contemporary psychotherapy practices. These contributions may focus on (2) the Christian worldview and theoretical frameworks, ensuring that these practices honor the spiritual traditions of Christian clients. That is, articles incorporating Christian spiritual practices focus on the emic perspective of Christians seeking psychotherapy. A concern among some Christian groups entails the alignment of psychotherapy practices, especially spiritually oriented or informed approaches, for Christians seeking these services. This honoring of the Christian tradition allows for the incorporation and inclusion of these practices alongside contemporary spiritually informed clinical practice. Articles submitted to this Special Issue may also provide empirical evidence that supports the use of CDM practices in psychotherapy.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
