

Special Issue

Reconciling Religion and Remains—Faith and Biblical Archaeology

Message from the Guest Editors

We are pleased to invite you to submit papers for this Special Issue of Religions entitled “Reconciling Religion and Remains—Faith and Biblical Archaeology”. The aim of this Special Issue is to develop new ideas and research directions related to the history of the field of biblical archaeology. We seek studies that explore biblical archaeology’s most influential individuals and their philosophical underpinnings, whether that includes a faith commitment or not. Articles may analyse the many paradigm shifts, methodological approaches, or the current discussions in biblical archaeology about the role that faith plays in archaeology and the nature of evidence. This Special Issue is devoted to studies, current trends, and issues facing the field of biblical archaeology, such as funding, departmental organisation at universities and seminaries, and the future of biblical archaeology in the academic world. We look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
