

Special Issue

Pilgrimage and Religious Mobilization in the World

Message from the Guest Editor

As with the first Special Issue which focused on Europe, this second Issue, with a worldwide focus, seeks to continue and elaborate on the existing research agendas and to establish a forum for new approaches, historical traditions, current trends, comparative approaches, conceptual developments, and methodological questions. Whose frames guide the pilgrims? Who profits from the pilgrims' decisions? What kind of identity emerges when pilgrims depart and return?

This Special Issue invites contributions from the fields of political science, history, geography, theology, sociology, religious studies, philosophy, anthropology, media studies, literature studies, tourism and travel studies, and the whole range of humanities and social sciences. The submission of a broad range of papers from disciplinary, interdisciplinary, and multidisciplinary perspectives, in order to elaborate on the empirical and theoretical aspects of all forms of pilgrimage and related religious mobilization in the world, is encouraged.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
