

Special Issue

Anthropological Perspectives on Diaspora and Religious Identities

Message from the Guest Editor

By bringing these three fields into a conversation, we hope to offer rich and refined understandings concerning the complex and dynamic relationships between movement and sedentarism, strangeness, and common sensuality. We expect that these new understandings will relate to both the observing anthropologist as well as the observed socio-cultural groups. In addition, we strive to collect articles that are both ethnographically varied and theoretically provoking, so that ethnographies from different parts of the world will question the very concepts that are at the heart of this Special Issue. I look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
