Computational Approaches to Ancient Jewish and Christian Texts

Message from the Guest Editor

We are pleased to invite you to submit an article for this Special Issue of Religions entitled “Computational Approaches to Ancient Jewish and Christian Texts”. The Special Issue aims to showcase and advance computational/algorithmic approaches to scholarly fields connected to Second Temple Judaism, New Testament Studies, and Early Christianity. The goal of this Special Issue is to combine scholarly research at a high, international level with groundbreaking computational/algorithmic approaches. As a scholarly field oriented around texts, literary approaches dealing with classic literary analyses focused on, for instance, genre, narrative, characters, style, tropes, intertextuality, author, gender, ethnicity, religion, ideology, and so on are very welcome. We look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
