

Special Issue

Lived Religions in the Contemporary World

Message from the Guest Editors

The topic for this Special Issue is “lived religion”, an approach that focuses on ordinary people practices when they engage in religious activities in everyday life. It does not focus on religious prescriptions, even when we cannot ignore them, but on how the ordinary persons adopt, adapt, modify, and create religion. We are interested in understanding how people invent alternative ways of being religious or cultivate dimensions they consider sacred, even if not prescribed by traditional religions.

The area of the publication is religion and social sciences, so we do request that papers be based in empirical research and contemporary cases.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
