Faith in Action: Exploring the Intersection of Religion and Social Justice

Message from the Guest Editors

We invite submissions that delve into the ways that religious and faith-based initiatives, individuals, and communities engage with social justice issues, addressing the role of belief systems in advocacy, activism, and community transformation. Suggested themes and article types for submissions

- Examination of holy texts, doctrines, and practices that emphasize social justice within and/or among specific religious traditions.
- Historical or contemporary case studies of religious communities or movements fighting for social justice and change amid oppression or injustice.
- Biographical examinations of the life, work, and motivation of faith-based individuals committed to social justice and change.
- Examples of historical or contemporary interfaith cooperation for social action.
- Analysis of the strategies, effects, and influence of religious organizations successfully agitating for social change and movement toward the common good.
- Analysis and consideration of how religion may uniquely motivate individuals and communities to sacrifice comfort, safety, and even life for the cause.
- The role of spirituality in motivating action and resilience.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
