

Special Issue

Muslims and COVID-19: Everyday Impacts, Experiences and Responses

Message from the Guest Editors

The idea of this Special Issue was conceived in Muslims in Britain Research Network's symposium held online in December 2020 in the UK. This Special Issue builds on those discussions about COVID-19 and Muslims in the UK to redress a gap of literature on Muslim lived experience of a global pandemic in Britain and beyond. Articles that use an intersectional perspective to capture the diverse layers of Muslim identity are particularly encouraged. As per MBRN's ethos, we welcome paper submissions from both academics and practitioners working with diverse Muslim communities to examine how diverse Muslim communities have experienced the pandemic, how their lives have been impacted during and after lockdown, and how they responded.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
