

Special Issue

Gender, Intermediality, Confession—Religious Gender Norms Revisited

Message from the Guest Editors

We invite submissions to the Special Issue “Gender, Intermediality, Confession: Religious Gender Norms Revisited.” This issue examines how religious traditions have shaped understandings of gender, the body, sexuality, and identity across both historical and contemporary contexts. The Special Issue aims to explore how gender norms are produced, communicated, negotiated, contested, and transformed within diverse confessional and cultural settings. Bringing together perspectives from religious studies, theology, gender studies, media studies, history, cultural studies, and literary studies, it seeks to foster interdisciplinary dialogue on the intersections of religion, gender, and media across time and space. Prospective authors are kindly invited to submit a tentative title and a 200–300 word abstract to martina.baer@uni-graz.at, benedikt.bauer@uni-jena.de, or vujkovic.sakanovic@mdpi.com prior to manuscript submission. All full-paper submissions will undergo a double-blind peer-review process.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
