

Special Issue

Religious Embodiments in South Asia

Message from the Guest Editor

For this Special Issue of Religions, I am inviting articles discussing various religious embodiments in South Asia. This Special Issue focuses on the body as a place and medium of embodied religion in South Asia. The primary focus is to discuss bodies in various religious and regional contexts in South Asia. It adds to the ongoing discussion on religion and the body from various theories, methods, historical periods, religions, and regions. This Special Issue invites in-depth investigation of embodied religious practices and performances in various religions, regions, and texts grounded in original research. In particular, I seek articles drawing upon case studies, performances, rituals, or textual interpretations that provide embodied knowledge and that challenge the understanding of the body, enabling a reconceptualization of the body.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
