

Special Issue

Titles, Paratexts, and Manuscript Communication: Jewish and Christian Literature in Material Context

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue is directly related to the Titles of the New Testament: A New Approach to Manuscripts and the History of Interpretation (TiNT) project funded by the European Research Council (ERC) under the European Union's Horizon 2020 research and innovation programme (grant agreement n° 847428). As such, we welcome contributions that engage the paratextual features (especially titles and titular formulations in all their forms) of early Jewish and Christian manuscripts. How does titular attribution change over time for a given work? What does this say about how the work was interpreted in a given context? How have certain paratextual features influenced a work's reception? What implications regarding canonicity and authority can be gleaned from paratextual information? You may choose to narrow your focus to one key feature of a single manuscript or to more broadly analyse a paratextual feature across multiple manuscripts.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
