

Special Issue

Christian Missions and the Environment

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue of Religions deals with the relationship between Christian missions and the natural environment. We invite contributions on the following themes:

- The historical role of Christian mission in its engagement with the environment in the 'colonies';
- The role of missionary societies in postcolonial environmental settings;
- Policies of current Christian NGOs vis-à-vis climate change and loss of biodiversity;
- Christian missionary eco-theology;
- Contemporary theology of missions and environmental sustainability;
- Churches, environmental change and sustainability in contexts;
- Churches, mission stations, Christian architecture and place-making, and the natural environment.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
