

Special Issue

Churches in Europe and the Challenge of Cultural Witness

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue seeks to provoke debate on established theoretical concepts in the study of the Christian church and its role in European culture and society. At the same time, this Special Issue will provide a platform for the emergence of new conceptual approaches. It will also emphasize the link between theological thinking and practical engagement, including cultural witness, church planting, fresh expression of churches, new monasticism, etc. We seek to include contributions from a range of academic disciplines, including interdisciplinary work. We are looking for contributions that engage critically and constructively with the current transformations in the relationship between Christian churches, culture, and society in Europe. We seek both descriptive and normative perspectives on the churches' contributions to the future of Europe.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
