

Special Issue

Ethics, Religion, and Peace

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue will focus on the interconnection of ethics, religion, and peace. The overarching intent is to be as inclusive as possible and welcome papers coming from different cultural, religious, political, and social backgrounds, focusing on topics such as contemporary ethical or moral issues, religious beliefs and practices, the role of religion in the peace process/peace initiatives, the interrelation between ethics and religion and other relevant questions and issues.

Authors/contributors may employ their approach—historical account, critical analysis, descriptive or comparative study, etc.—but they are encouraged to relate their papers to the existing literature.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
