Studying Religion Interreligiously

Message from the Guest Editors

We are writing to invite you to contribute a paper to a Special Issue of Religions devoted to exploring and explaining why and how religions must be studied interreligiously. We welcome contributions related to any aspect of the theory—philosophical, historiographical, narratological—and/or the practice of studying religion interreligiously, focusing either on the facilitators of interreligious exchange—translators, shared linguistic matrixes, converts and other go-betweens—or a specific area of religious interaction—liturgy, law, ritual, hermeneutics, social hierarchies eschatology and so forth. For more information on the issue, please visit the Special Issue website at https://www.mdpi.com/journal/religions/special\_issues/interreligious.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
