Critical Perspectives on Islamophobia: From Local to Global, From Individual to Institutional

Message from the Guest Editors

We invite submissions from established and early career scholars and practitioners that have the potential to contribute new critical perspectives to this salient discussion. While maintaining a necessarily broad remit, some indicative topics for investigation might include: the experience of male victims of street-level Islamophobia; discourse analyses of mainstream political rhetoric; the investigation of 'institutional Islamophobia(s)'; Islamophobia in the context of the Global South; children's encounters with Islamophobia; Islamophobia in the era of COVID-19; and inter-community Islamophobia, e.g., Islamophobia emanating from within Sikh and Hindu communities. Far from exhaustive, submissions may engage with any aspect of the theme of the Special Issue, whether empirically, theoretically, and/or conceptually, and be from any discipline and geographical location.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
