Rebooting Ecumenism - New Paradigms for the 21st Century

Message from the Guest Editor

The world is very different now compared to when the 'golden age' of ecumenism began, soon after World War II, when churches and their theologians around the world embraced the idea of ecumenism with drive and enthusiasm.

Our current times, with the divides in modern society and the threat of nuclear conflict, tensions have increased to perilous levels. This is why, in the face of today's conflicts and divisions, we are called on once again to make ecumenism a priority for all religious denominations worldwide.

The Special Issue seeks to explore novel models of perceiving or conceiving ecumenism, from historical to contemporary examples, from theological to ecclesiological or pastoral designs, and from spirituality to methodology.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
