

Special Issue

Advances in the Dialogue between Psychoanalysis and Religion

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue is around Religions on advances in the dialogue between religion and psychoanalysis (understood in its broadest sense as starting with Freud and moving through any number of the multiple psychoanalytic theorists that changed theory up to the present day).

Those advances can take many different forms: 1) advances in theory;

2) advances in the conversation between psychoanalysis and any religious tradition or new religious movement and their accouterments/content (e.g., ritual, scripture, myth, theology, the paranormal, religious experience, conversion, etc.);

3) advances in the relations between psychoanalysis and linked disciplines (e.g., sociology, anthropology, philosophy, queer theory, feminism, critical race studies, neurocognitive studies, psychohistory, political science, etc.);

4) applications to contemporary social, cultural and religious phenomena.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
