The Intelligibility of Reality: Theology and Science between Mystery That Calls and Research Humility

Message from the Guest Editor

The Reality, also thanks to the advancements of technology and regardless of the ever deeper knowledge we may have of it, always remains covered by a thin veil, and therefore always partially inaccessible. This offers a dynamism that indeed calls every Truth-seeker, who feels deeply challenged by the surface of a multilevel, mysterious but also understandable Reality.

We are pleased to invite you to submit papers from different fields addressing the trans-disciplinary dialogue between theology and empirical sciences, with specific reference to the dynamic correlation between the Mystery, which invites and gives confidence to knowledge and research, and the Humility of the researchers in a multilevel Reality. Key topics for the special issue are the following, and related, ones: Anthropological level, Physical Science, Cosmological level, Complexity level, Theological level.

I look forward to receive your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
