

Special Issue

Spiritual Care With Migrant Families

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue is relevant to teachers, psychologists, theologians, policy-makers, chaplains, spiritual directors, and educators with an interest in—and a concern for—religious practice, religious theory and research, the impact of religious and spiritual traditions on human flourishing, and their implications for a more just society. We seek papers that address but are not limited to the following areas:

- Internal and external migrations and the effect on identity formation;
- Resilience in religious communities and spiritualities;
- Rootedness and connectedness while living in the host country;
- Religious diasporas and shifting religious landscapes and implications for caring practices for migrant and host communities;
- Legal frameworks for addressing policy issues around migrants;
- Role of spirituality in the migratory journey and settlement in new country;
- Cultural obstacles confronted by migrants in the construction and conceptualization of family and gender relations in host country.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
