

Special Issue

Theology and Phenomenology

Message from the Guest Editor

This issue is dedicated to critical investigations at the intersection of theology and phenomenology. It invites scholars to contribute articles that explore this intersection, explore the limitations, significance, or contributions of the so-called “theological turn” in phenomenology. These contributions could consider individual questions in phenomenology and theology or more fundamental and methodological concerns that the “turn” has engendered.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community – disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
