Recent Trends for Image Restoration Techniques Used in Remote Sensing

Message from the Guest Editors

As an effective approach to acquiring knowledge of objects in the area of interest from a distance, Remote sensing is changing our world and the way we think. Recent years have witnessed fast technological progress and unprecedented influence in numerous fields, e.g., agriculture, forestry, weather, biodiversity, etc. Sophisticated remote sensing platforms and instruments are increasingly being launched to capture remote sensing images. This Special Issue aims to review and synthesize the latest progress in image restoration techniques in remote sensing. Prospective authors are invited to contribute to this Special Issue of Remote Sensing by submitting an original manuscript.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Remote Sensing is now a prominent international journal of repute in the world of remote sensing and spatial sciences, as a pioneer and pathfinder in open access format. It has highly accomplished global remote sensing scientists on the editorial board and a dedicated team of associate editors. The journal emphasizes quality and novelty and has a rigorous peer-review process. It is now one of the top remote sensing journals with a significant Impact Factor, and a goal to become the best journal in remote sensing in the coming years. I strongly recommend Remote Sensing for your best research publications for a fast dissemination of your research.
