

Special Issue

Earth Observations in Asia-Oceania

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue will highlight how remote sensing is being used across the Asia–Oceania region, to inform a diverse range of issues, including environmental change and conditions, food security, disaster management and surveillance, and to envisage what those needs will be in the future. We are inviting submissions including, but not limited to, the following:

- Regional and ecosystem changes in montane coastal and ocean environments
- Assessing climate change
- Disaster-risk management
- Food security
- Surveillance of legal and illegal activities
- User needs and capacity building
- Collaboration and coordination efforts to better utilise Earth observation
- Novel applications and emerging needs

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Remote Sensing is now a prominent international journal of repute in the world of remote sensing and spatial sciences, as a pioneer and pathfinder in open access format. It has highly accomplished global remote sensing scientists on the editorial board and a dedicated team of associate editors. The journal emphasizes quality and novelty and has a rigorous peer-review process. It is now one of the top remote sensing journals with a significant Impact Factor, and a goal to become the best journal in remote sensing in the coming years. I strongly recommend Remote Sensing for your best research publications for a fast dissemination of your research.

Author Benefits

Open Access:

free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), Ei Compendex, PubAg, GeoRef, Astrophysics Data System, Inspec, dblp, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Geosciences, Multidisciplinary) / CiteScore - Q1 (General Earth and Planetary Sciences)
