

Special Issue

Lunar Remote Sensing and Applications

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue invites manuscripts resulting from the analysis of remote sensing datasets acquired by the latest lunar missions, as well as from lab-measured spectral data with the aim of highlighting the importance of lab spectroscopic and imaging remote sensing in studies of the Moon. The Special Issue also welcomes to manuscripts reporting research results from various observations and measurements by use of photography, X-ray, gamma-ray, gravitational, magnetic, and topographic data, which advance our current knowledge of the Moon. Please access the detailed SI information at: <http://www.mdpi.com/si/26812>

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Remote Sensing is now a prominent international journal of repute in the world of remote sensing and spatial sciences, as a pioneer and pathfinder in open access format. It has highly accomplished global remote sensing scientists on the editorial board and a dedicated team of associate editors. The journal emphasizes quality and novelty and has a rigorous peer-review process. It is now one of the top remote sensing journals with a significant Impact Factor, and a goal to become the best journal in remote sensing in the coming years. I strongly recommend Remote Sensing for your best research publications for a fast dissemination of your research.

Author Benefits

Open Access:

free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), Ei Compendex, PubAg, GeoRef, Astrophysics Data System, Inspec, dblp, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Geosciences, Multidisciplinary) / CiteScore - Q1 (General Earth and Planetary Sciences)
