Remote Sensing Applications in Vegetation Classification

Message from the Guest Editors

We would like to introduce a new Special Issue entitled "Remote Sensing Applications in Vegetation Classification". We welcome submissions which provide the community with the most recent advancements on all aspects of vegetation classification, including but not limited to species, communities, and habitats on urban, agricultural, semi-natural, and natural areas. The Special Issue invites research papers describing the state of the art in the field of vegetation classification at national, continental, or global scales. Keywords:

- vegetation
- multitemporal
- classification
- algorithm
- species
- vegetation communities
- identification
- mapping

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Remote Sensing is now a prominent international journal of repute in the world of remote sensing and spatial sciences, as a pioneer and pathfinder in open access format. It has highly accomplished global remote sensing scientists on the editorial board and a dedicated team of associate editors. The journal emphasizes quality and novelty and has a rigorous peer-review process. It is now one of the top remote sensing journals with a significant Impact Factor, and a goal to become the best journal in remote sensing in the coming years. I strongly recommend Remote Sensing for your best research publications for a fast dissemination of your research.
