

Special Issue

Smart Sensing and Applications in Health Assessment

Message from the Guest Editors

The goal of this Special Issue is to bring together scientists, researchers, practitioners, and service providers in order to publish high-quality manuscripts related to sensing technologies, data analytics, and their application in health assessment and physical examinations. Topics of interest include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Novel sensor technologies in health assessment;
- Novel application-specific and general predictive analytics techniques for sensors;
- Applications that support effective deployment of sensing technologies for health assessments;
- Case studies of predictive, personalised and precision health assessment using data analytics in combination with sensors.

Original research and comprehensive review papers will be considered. Best regards,

Guest Editors

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Sensors is a leading journal devoted to fast publication of the latest achievements of technological developments and scientific research in the huge area of physical, chemical and biochemical sensors, including remote sensing and sensor networks. Both experimental and theoretical papers are published, including all aspects of sensor design, technology, proof of concept and application. Sensors organizes Special Issues devoted to specific sensing areas and applications each year.
