Deep Learning in Visual and Wearable Sensing for Motion Analysis and Healthcare

Message from the Guest Editors

We are pleased to announce this Special Issue, which aims to gather together articles investigating the use of deep learning approaches in visual and wearable sensing, e.g., for motion analysis and healthcare applications. This issue will make a significant contribution to the field of machine learning and cover a broad spectrum of applications in the medical domain. Applications may include (but are not limited to): diagnostics, activity recognition, motion tracking, motion analysis of body parts or rehabilitation support. As sensor technologies are diverse, we welcome all papers exploring the use of wearable sensors or ambient sensors (such as RGB(D) image/video, millimeter-wave radar, etc.).
