

Special Issue

Low Energy Wireless Sensor Networks: Protocols, Architectures and Solutions

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue aims at collecting high quality research papers and review articles focusing on recent advances in low energy communications protocols, architectures and solutions for WSN devices.

Potential topics of interest include, but are not limited to:

- Low energy WPAN technologies
- LPWAN technologies
- Lightweight IP-based protocols
- Low-energy protocol architectures
- Low-energy approaches for 5G-based WSNs
- Energy-efficient routing and data aggregation for WSNs
- Networking solutions for energy-harvesting devices
- Energy-neutral WSNs
- Cross-layer solutions for low energy consumption in WSNs
- Low energy protocols for WSNs in smart-x environments
- Low energy security mechanisms for WSNs
- Low energy techniques for management of WSNs
- Energy-efficient encoding formats for WSNs
- Experimental, simulation and/or theoretical evaluation of low-energy WSNs

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Sensors is a leading journal devoted to fast publication of the latest achievements of technological developments and scientific research in the huge area of physical, chemical and biochemical sensors, including remote sensing and sensor networks. Both experimental and theoretical papers are published, including all aspects of sensor design, technology, proof of concept and application. Sensors organizes Special Issues devoted to specific sensing areas and applications each year.

Editor-in-Chief
