Nanoimmunosensor

Message from the Guest Editors

In this Special Issue of Nanoimmunosensor, we seek to bring together researchers from various areas of science working on integrated technologies for the development and engineering of novel, versatile immunosensing platforms with potential applications in, but not limited to, clinical analysis, therapeutics, and pharmaceuticals. This Special Issue will showcase the most recent advances and highly interdisciplinary approaches covering both material engineering and detection aspects of nanoimmunosensors with the goal of highlighting their widening applications in different fields, presenting challenges to their use, and exploring future research directions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Sensors is a leading journal devoted to fast publication of the latest achievements of technological developments and scientific research in the huge area of physical, chemical and biochemical sensors, including remote sensing and sensor networks. Both experimental and theoretical papers are published, including all aspects of sensor design, technology, proof of concept and application. Sensors organizes Special Issues devoted to specific sensing areas and applications each year.
