Smart Sensors for Biological Application

Message from the Guest Editor

The sensing technology is a developing rapidly and employed in the direction of analytical application for the benefit of society. The current demand of sensing devices is not only for electronics but also for biological applications like; environmental observing, pathogen recognition, food care and disease monitoring. A Variety Of smart systems and built and introduced for a range of areas in this direction, from smart sensing to building and integration methods. Techniques reporting on the most recent knowledge advancements in multiplexed sensors and other types of smart sensor incorporated with microfluidics chips are of interest in this special issue. This includes photonic, optical, electrochemical, magnetic and other sensing strategies. I persuade young and senior scientists to contribute in this special issue on “Smart Sensors for Biological application”, which is promising research subjects with a variety of applications.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Sensors is a leading journal devoted to fast publication of the latest achievements of technological developments and scientific research in the huge area of physical, chemical and biochemical sensors, including remote sensing and sensor networks. Both experimental and theoretical papers are published, including all aspects of sensor design, technology, proof of concept and application. Sensors organizes Special Issues devoted to specific sensing areas and applications each year.
